

The feet are moving and the machines are rotating in Dodoma!

It's amazing to see the progress, of the project, that we've made over the last couple of years.

The for us rather old-fashioned but for Tanzanian standard's modern sewing machines, are in full use. When I first entered the facilities of WanaZiwi, I was stunned by all the activity going on and felt very proud.

Of course, also from Groningen we are always busy with the project but when I saw the woman working enthusiastically on the machines I was speechless. They are working hard but also have a lot of fun sewing dresses, school uniforms, skirts and much more. How great! From the teacher Ally Mantoni the women learn special sewing techniques and how to finalize the products. It is great to see how he teaches the deaf women with very little sign language and a special book about sewing techniques.

Overall, they buy beautiful and colorful Tanzanian fabric and combined with Dutch sewing-thread beautiful products are established. I am very proud how the work and the project itself is moving so much in the women's lives.

Best, Nienke.
